Monday 16 – Saturday 21 March 2015

Directed by Leigh White

This musical spoof on the Saturday night rituals of seven pubescent seventeen year olds celebrates the eternal embarrassment of being a teenager. With a varied cross section of famous 60s numbers – from Cliff And The Shadows to Bob Dylan via The Beatles - girls in mini skirts and boys in Chelsea boots sing songs about teen traumas that sound like all those 60's hits you've heard before. An evening of fun and musical nostalgia that you really shouldn't miss.

“A pleasurable, lightly satirical revel in sixties manners and music... with bite, kick and hanky panky” —The Guardian

This amateur production of A Slice of Saturday Night is presented by special
